Ki — A Light Energy that Fills Mind, Body and Soul vol.15

Ki radiating heads and goods that save and replenish Ki

You can absorb Ki emitted from the tip of the head of a High Genki apparatus without having the head directly touching your body, if you make a conscious effort to receive Ki.

Also, since Ki passes through any object including clothes, just always putting the head around you allows you to replenish the energy through any part of your body.

You are likely to be influenced by the negative Ki from the vibrating energies of various places and people, especially when you go out. In order to protect you from such a situation and always wrap you in the Shinkiko energy, the Stick Head and the Mini Stick Head were designed and created.

They are small and lightweight, made of titanium, and created for the same reason as the Power Unit mentioned earlier. You can replenish Ki emitted from the head by just putting it in a bag when you go out, or by putting it beside a pillow when you sleep while traveling, just like charging a battery. By always storing Ki like this, you can keep your mind and body free from the influence of various negative factors from outside.

Positive Ki never causes troubles even if it is overly stored. If you can charge yourself with a lot of positive Ki energy, you will be able to share the energy with the things and people around you and to have a positive effect on them, gradually expanding the sphere of the influence.

The late chairman was not only told about the structure of the High Genki apparatus in his dream, but also told about the technique of fixing the vibrating energy of the Shinkiko energy on various objects. Ki goods and products are developed with this technique. By putting the things that can emit Shinkiko energy around you, you can charge yourself with Ki energy. Using various Ki goods such as pillows, mats, towels, pendants, seals and cosmetics, produces a better effect of the High Genki. They are all reasonably priced; so they are good for those who want to try Shinkiko energy or good for gifts to your friends.

“Remote Shinkiko” --- sending energy to remote places

Ki can be transferred regardless of distance and time. No matter how far, no matter what obstacles there are, Ki can be transferred instantly. So by using the High Genki apparatus, not only the user but also someone far away from him can receive the energy. This is called “Remote Shinkiko.”

I remotely send Shinkiko energy at a scheduled time depending on various Ki session programs (pay service) requested by customers at each Shinkiko center across the country; but those who own the apparatus can also remotely send Ki to others.

The easiest way to send Ki remotely, is to put a picture of someone who you want to send Ki, or a paper with his name, address, the birth of date and so on, written on it, into the case of the High Genki apparatus. The Ki emitted from the apparatus will be sent to him as well.

Also, if you can charge yourself with Ki energy to some extent by always using the High Genki apparatus, you can send the energy more powerfully to others by focusing on it. To do so, you picture the Ki (or light) emitted from the High Genki head comes into you, and picture the person's face or his impression who you want to send Ki, in your mind; and concentrate on letting the Ki comes to you and him.

Development of the products that can send the energy efficiently

It is needless to say that the most important thing in receiving Ki is receiving it as much as possible and as efficiently as possible. Having worked as an engineer, I have been focusing on improving the High Genki apparatus and developing the related goods, with that always in mind.

We are always under the influence of various negative and positive Kis in our daily life, before we know it. But since the heavy High Genki apparatus is not suitable for carrying around, and since those who live far away from our Shinkiko centers cannot visit there every day, portable Ki goods, such as small accessories in which the pattern of the vibrating energy of Ki is stored, have been developed as well.

The newest release of our Ki related products are "White Ceramic Head" and "Soft Head."

They both produce heat and vibrate. As I explained earlier, Ki is not produced by electricity. So they, including the High Genki apparatus, transfer Ki without electricity. The tip of these two heads slightly vibrates while producing a gentle heat.

A comfortable subtle vibration and a gentle heat encourage your mind to concentrate and let you absorb Ki energy much better. I thought it would be highly effective especially for those who do not know how to receive Ki well.

The reason why the function of detecting acupressure points as in Chinese Kikou (or Qigong), had been built into the body of the High Genki apparatus is because, I thought, applying the head to the skin to find acupressure points, would allow the user to concentrate while benefiting from the effect of traditional acupressure therapy. Of course you can receive Ki from the Ki related products even if they are turned off, or even if the head is not applied to acupressure points, but I thought it would be more effective with the use of heat and vibration.

Feel the energy and let it soak into your soul --- "White Ceramic Head"

The part that vibrates inside the White Ceramic Head has been changed to a whole new thing in order to let it vibrate more than the conventional heads of the Ki products. Also, a special ceramic was used for the outer wall of the vibrating part, and it was designed to emit the heat generated from inside, as a far-infrared ray.

The far-infrared ray that is used for heating devices and cookware, as you know, is absorbed not only into the surface of the skin but deeper into the body; making use of this feature has enabled the vibrating energy emitted from the head to absorb better.

The point that I had focused most on was the shape and quality of the ceramic. In order to store the pattern of the vibrating energy of Shinkiko energy as much as possible, I used a special ceramic that is said to be hard next to diamonds, for the tip of the head, and shaped it into a cylindrical shape. It costs a little expensive for it takes time to brush up the surface of it, but I succeeded in dramatically heightening the quality and the stability of the vibrating energy.

Also, a new pendant was made by shaping the same ceramic into a narrow pipe, and enclosing a 30 micrometer thin plate with one thousand SAS logos engraved on it.

If you use this pendant together with the White Ceramic Head, the pendant works like an antenna and gathers Shinkiko energy, and the maximum effect of the head can be achieved.
