

Chapter 3

The relationship between Ki, the spirit, and the material world

We are under the influence of the intangible world

The tangible world and the intangible world are not separated by something like a wall. The huge intangible world exists as though wrapping around the tangible world, and we are living in both worlds simultaneously. Sometimes, various energies possessed by the intangible Ki and the spirit appear in this three-dimensional material world in the form of a phenomenon.

Understanding the great power beyond the material world

In this chapter, I will talk a little about the spirit, the ghost, and the paranormal world; intangible spiritual entities.

We tend to limit ourselves to thinking about things that we can see and touch, and assume that anything that cannot be verified by science does not exist. However, the things that can be verified by science are only a small portion of all the things in the world. Even the identity of the mind has not yet been explained.

All phenomena occurring in this world are actually caused by various energies existing in the material world and the intangible world, which is beyond physics. Troubles such as sickness, accidents, hardships and conflicts involving human relationships and money do not happen by chance, but the intangible world around us is involved.

Phenomenon equals consequences and there is always a cause for any phenomenon. Without understanding a deep relationship between causes and consequences beyond the natural law, it is difficult to be aware of the incredible power beyond this tiny material world and the great function that the spirit has.

If the Shinkiko energy is sent to the intangible world, it allows the phenomenal world to change. In order to create good consequences, or good phenomena, the energy gives the light to a cause, and changes occur.

© Masato Nakagawa 2009-2019 All rights reserved.